Travels in the United States of America and Canada, containing some account of their scientific institutions, and a few notices of the geology and an essay on the natural boundaries of empires

by John Finch