Richard The Levelord Gray is a video game designer who is best known for designing levels. Dates back to his early work on what became Blood starting in September 1994, based on how he signed off e-mails to designer Nick Newhard. The name Grey was originally used as one of ten characters created and filed with the original patent for the game. Miss Grey, along with Mrs. Silver, was one of ten characters created and filed with the original patent for the game.
